Free CPD for the whole team with Oral-B

The most recent edition of the popular publication Dental Summary Review (DSR) and DSR (Team Issue) was released at the end of May providing the Profession with 3 hours of complimentary CPD. DSR is targeted at dentists, hygienists and therapists, whilst the DSR (Team Issue) is, as its title suggests, aimed at all other practice members. Both titles are published by Oral-B to provide the profession with a digest of some of the most interesting and stimulating research that has recently been published. Papers have been taken from a plethora of journals to provide readers with an overview of current research in a range of subjects in clinical dentistry and practice management.

The publication is edited by Dr Stephen Hancocks, OBE and is available to all UK practitioners. If you have not already received a copy contact shancocks@aol.com or visit www.shancocksltd.com

DSR is just one means by which Oral-B support the Profession's need for education. Readers enjoy the convenience of the publication, meaning they can study for CPD in their own time and at their own pace rather than travelling to a lecture, meeting or course. For those that do enjoy more interactive learning Oral-B run a series of seminars throughout the year. Please speak to your local representative to find out where the nearest one is in your area. If you don't know who your representative is please call 0870 242 1850.
